

Building One Health Management through collaboration: Key insights from a European Joint Action on Antimicrobial Resistance

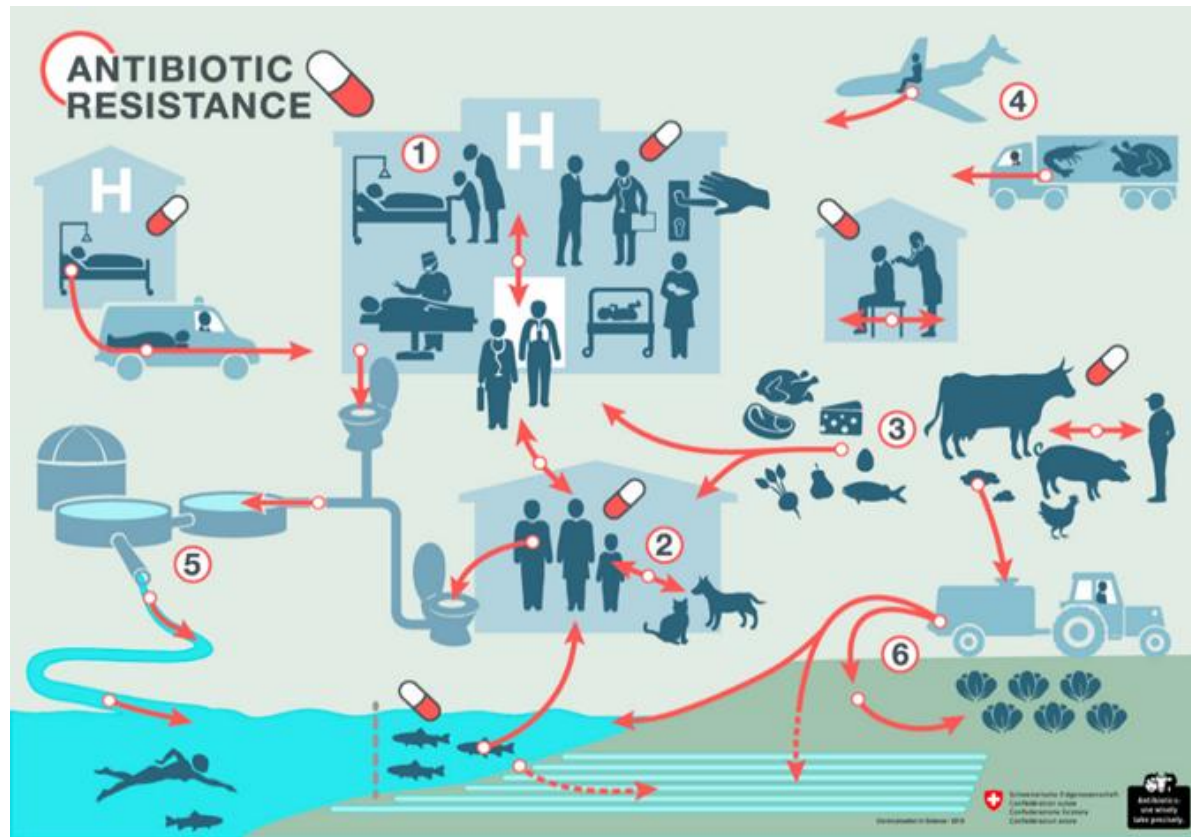

Karina Rojas Salvador (EU-JAMRAI)

#EHMA2025

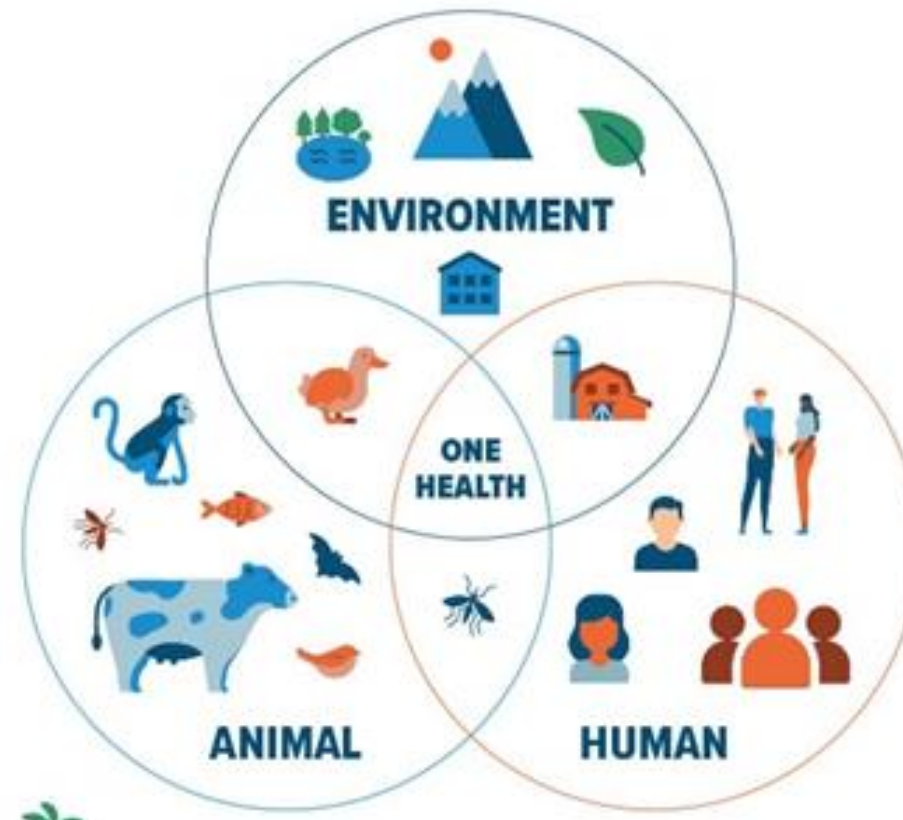

WE KNOW “THE WHAT”

Antimicrobial Resistance: a multifaceted challenge

WE ARE STILL FIGURING “THE HOW”

One Health Approach

*implementation?
operationalization?
in practice?*

OH Management & Collaboration

EU-JAMRAI: Developing and implementing National Action Plans (NAP) on AMR

One Health collaboration on AMR NAP?

EU JAMRAI: What we have learned about collaboration? (policymaking)

1. OH management MUST be tailored and flexible

- Deep understanding of country's context, governance structures, NAP implementation stage

2. Factors where OH management thrives:

- Dedicated budgets and institutional support
- Clear coordination structures and shared vision
- Formal and informal communication channels

3. Social relations matter

- Trust, dialogue, and mutual understanding are as important as technical alignment.

4. Capacity-building is essential

- Leadership, transdisciplinary thinking and communication are KEY

5. Collaboration is both a strategy and a mindset

- Requires humility, flexibility, and a commitment to continuous learning

EU JAMRAI: What we have learned about collaboration? (policymaking)

Collaboration is key but challenging

Boosting OH Management

- ✓ Invest on interdisciplinary training
- ✓ Deepen our knowledge on collaborative governance platforms
- ✓ Leadership in cross-sector facilitation
- ✓ And the list continues...
